

I as an American citizen and a veteran with two-tours served in Iraq, oppose any changes to the current FCC indecency standards that would allow television and radio stations to broadcast expletives and nudity on the public airwaves, even if brief or “fleeting.”

The Supreme Court has confirmed the FCC’s authority to enforce policies regarding expletives and nudity, especially during times when children are likely to be watching or listening.

Relaxing the current policy would not serve the public interest and I urge the FCC to reject all proposals that would allow for the broadcast of expletives and nudity on FCC-licensed stations.

Furthermore, the mind of a child is fragile, and the innocence should be preserved as best as possible. The condition of our nation has been on a slow decent toward moral decay, but recently the rate of the nation’s decent has rapidly increased. Dropping any bans which gives our nation any degree of moral integrity should be unconstitutional and unwelcomed.

I close with this; think about the principles America was founded on, think about the people who gave their lives to preserve our great nation’s moral good standing, should there be any degradation of the FCC’s indecency standards calculate the consequences, think about you children or grandchildren or any child you know in your life, think about whether or not such an action will benefit the integrity of our nation, and how will dropping a ban on profanity and nudity that will be aired on public television affect future generations?
